Cologne: City on the Rhine

- 2000 years ago the Romans built a settlement on the Rhine
- Originally a village, grew to a town and developed into a city - it does have a cathedral
- Cologne has lots of bridges - people can live and work on both sides of the river
- Cologne is famous for its Christmas markets
- Flood walls had to be built as Cologne is the most likely city in Europe to flood

Rotterdam: City on the Rhine

- Rotterdam is a port at the mouth of the river
- Often called the "Gateway to Europe" as goods are delivered here and then transported across Europe
- There is a large wind farm here as it is very windy in the North Sea which the Rhine flows into
- Rotterdam imports and exports lots of goods all over the world, not just in Europe

The Mediterranean Sea

- The Mediterranean Sea touches three continents: Europe, Asia and Africa
- The strait of Gibraltar connects the Mediterranean Sea to the Atlantic Ocean
- The Mediterranean Sea contains two more seas: Balearic Sea and the Aegean Sea
- 21 countries have coastlines on The Mediterranean Sea
- The Mediterranean Sea is an enclosed sea: almost entirely closed in

The Suez Canal

- Located in Egypt
- Built to reduce shipping transport times to Europe - avoiding the dangerous water off Cape of Good Hope in South Africa
- Connects the Mediterranean with the Indian Ocean
- There are no locks on this canal
- Around 50 ships sail through the Suez Canal every day.

Did you know....?

The UK's longest River; The Severn (220 miles) plus The Thames (215 miles) would still NOT be as long as the Rhine at 764 miles long!
